GENTS:—I deem it due to you and the public,
to say a word in favor of your GREEN'S AGUE AND FEVER MIXTURE. Last fall, I bought a bottle from you, and cared twelve cases of Ague and Fever with it, and have used only half the bottle. In one of the above-mentioned cases, I had used quinine and every other remedy I could hear of, without success. It never failed in any case. Respectfully, S. B. HARRIS.

This certifies that I suffered from Ague and Fever for eight years, during which time I tried every medicine I could hear of, without any per-manent benefit, until I obtained Green's Ague and Fever Medicine, which entirely cuted me.

A speedy, safe and effectual remedy for Di arrhoea, Dynentery, Cholera Infantum, or Summer Complaint of Children, Cholera Morbus, and any, or all, Irregularities of the Bowels. Travelers should always have a supply of this Syrup with them, to counteract the deraugement of the Bowels consequent on using a change of Water. Every Family should keep this Syrup, and par tioniarly in the summer time, when Fruits are abundant, and the bowels of Children frequently become deranged. It will be found efficacious in restoring them to their usual healthy action. Hundreds of certificates might be obtained, establishing the value of this remedy in diseases of the bowels, one only of which we will insert here. Read the following from O. A. Luckett Esq., an eminent Lawyer, and highly respectable citizen of Cauton, Miss. "This certifies that I have used Green's Carminative or Diarrhoa Mixture in my family for several years with perfect success, and confidently ecommend it to the public, as the best remedy know of, for Diarrhea and similar diseases of the Bowels. It is especially adapted to the summer complaints of children, who take it readily, and are fond of it. O. A. LUCKETT.

INSCRIBED TO MY SISTER, BETTIE B., OF SENTON To-night, while Nature's robe is decked With Lunar's softest rays. Across my heart comes stenling slow,

The thoughts of by-gone days. And stands sjar the pearly door That closes mem'ry's hall, I steal within to gaze upon The pictures on the wall.

One little nook is filled with scenes That tell of childish glee, And each contains one merry group Around dear mother's knee.

Ah! here I'll check the speed of thought, That bears me onward fast, And pay to these a tribute dear, A tear that they are past.

From other figures light, The dust the wheel of Time has cast Upon their faces bright. Yes, faces dear, that once were wreath'd

Now sadly pass to brush away

With pleasure's dimpled smiles, But now, alas ! I call their names-'Tis echo that replies.

Upon thy image long I gaze, My own, my sister dear, While from my heart comes quiv'ring forth: "Oh! would that thou wert here."

I long to clasp thee to my heart, And hear thy merry voice; For once thy happy, joyous laugh Did make all hearts rejoice. Then come to us-accept the chair

So often placed for thee,

And once again complete the group Around dear mother's knee. MAGGIE MYRTLE.

FRANKLIN, TENN., January 21st, 1860. I FOR THE DEMOCRAT. TO "BENTON," OF BENTON. The pain of parting is not in the Moment when we say "farewell." The Heart is then nerved up to certainty, And meets the saddening trial which It may not, cannot pass. But, ab ! When mem'ry, in its oft misguided Zeal to please, removes the viel which keeps The dust of busy life from setting Over her dear pictures; when I view The little monuments of happiness, That mark the hours that were once Such dear realities ; when I gaze Upon the proofs of friendship that in Purity, and truth, hold no communion With self-interest; when I feel that Distance toon will leave me nothing But these mem'ries, ah! then I suffer All the agony of parting. When I Recall thy worth, thy noble heart, and All thy trusting confidence, I feel To murmur at the fate which makes Me part from one my heart has so Entwined itself around. We hope In absence, but "Benton," you, like me, Ere this, have learned too well that hopes Are so like rays of light we see, yet Never grasp; that there is more pain Than pleasure in the thought. We part, And now I have no solace but in Communion with the past, which time I note with joy, as having drawn thee In, to make remembrance sweet. The end Of absence may be death. If so, Upon the confines of a better land, BENTON, February 5th, 1860. I DIDN'T KNOW WHAT IT MEANT. He gave me a knife one day at school, Four-bladed, the handle of pearl,

And great black words on the wrapper said, "For the darlingest little girl."

I was glad! Oh yes, yet the crimson blood To my young cheek came and went, And my heart thumped wondrously pit-a pat, But I didn't know what it meant.

One night he said I must jump on his steed, For the snow was falling fast; I was half afraid, but he coaxed and maxed, And got me on at last. Laughing and chatting in merry glee,

To my home his course he bent, My sisters looked at each other and smiled, But I didn't know what it meant.

The years passed on, and they touched his eyes With a shadow of deeper blue; They gave to his form a manlier grace, To his cheek a swathier hue. We stood by the dreamily rippling brook, When the day was almost spent-His whispers were as soft as the lullaby -

And-now I know what it meant ! on the 21st ult, ia New York.

The following incident is recorded in the early annals of Indiana legislation :

ly of age, had been elected to represent the county of D- in the Legislature which was about to meet at Vincennes in 1819. But let him tell his own story:

When I was near Vincennes I began to think what a very sorry figure I, a green country lad, would cut in an assembly of the wisdom of the State, and it required all my resolution to keep me from turning back. Somehow or other I managed to get through the swearing in process and sneaked away to u seat, from which I hardly ventured to look up until the House adjourned for dinner. On returning to my hotel I was rather gratified to find that I was to have, as a roommate a brother member, who, as he had made at least six speeches during the foreroon session, I naturally regarded as one of the great men of the House. After dinner he came up to our joint room, and carefully closing the door, pulled out of his pocket an enormous, old-fashioned, bull's-eye watch, and handed it to me with this remark: 'Uncle Jake told me, just as I was starting, that I ought to have a watch, and loaned me this; but I don't know how to screw the thing up; do you?" I walked into the legislative hall that afternoon with the most unlimited confidence in my ability to discharge all duties incumbent as a legislator.

A TERRIFIC LEAP .- After describing the various feats of Thomas Halon, at Niblo's Garden in New York city, one of our exchanges portrays his master feat from an terial apparatus in the following manner:

"He suddenly darts from the slender platform, and taking a terrific leap, grasps at a rope at least twenty feet distant, which hangs from the rigging loft of the theatre, and after swinging on it for some short time, lets himself down on the stage. This appalling net of labor and ingenuity must be seen to be appreciated; the most elaborate description sounds tame after witnessing it, and whon seen it takes the breath away from the spectator, since, should be miss his hold nothing could save him from instant desraction. It as undoubtedly the boldest, the most reckless gymuastic feat ever attempted.

THE "WE" OF EDITORS. -It is a prevailing idea among some people that because editors, in referring to themselves, use the word "we,"they consider they amount to two or three ordinary men. This is a mistake. Editors are naturally, a very modest and unassuming class; indeed remarkably so. The word 'we' merely includes the editor and the 'devil.' The custom originated with Faust, the founder of the distinguished profession. The superstitious people of the day supposed him to be leagned with the devil. Faust, to encourage the idea, which rendered him a person of so much import-ance, and command such a high respect, was accustomed to indite himself is his 'leaders' and 'grocery puffs,' as 'we,' which includes himself and highly distinguished assistant, the Prince of Darkness. In modern times, his infernal Highness has doubtless found the printing business a poor investment, and has entirely withdrawn his patronage from the craft .- Buffalo Republican. Mr. A. DeDauuny, of Tampa, Fla., writes to the Mayor of Columbus, Ga., to know if manufacturers of Columbus cannot supply Florida with articles as cheap as they can be furnished at the North. This is a move in the right direction, and all that Southern manafacturers have to do is to advertise their wares liberally, and sell them as cheap at home as they do when they send them to

New York and throw them on the market. CURE FOR CORNS .- If "A Poor Cripple" will take a lemon, cut off a piece, then nick it so us to let in the toe, with the corn, the the pulp nort the corn; tie this on at night, so that it cannot move; he will find the next morning that, with a blunt knife, the corn will come away to a great extent. Two or three applications of this will make "A Poor Cripple" happy for life; and I shall be glad to hear the result .- London Field.

SOOTHING DRINK FOR A COUGH.-Take two ounces of figs, and the same of raisins and pearl barley. Boil them together in a pint and a balf of water, with balf an ounce of liquorice root and the same of flaxseed, till reduced to a pint of liquid. Strain this off; sweeten if desired, and take from one to four teaspoonfuls as often as the severity of the cough requires.
